STENOGRAPHIC GLIMPSES OF CONGRESS.

No. 104.

Washington, April 1st, 1834.—Since Mr Clay's Resolutions have been disposed of, the spell which has produced such constant excitement in the Senate for the last four months seems to be broken. What new charm will be wrought to amuse and interest the opposition till dog-days? Unless they can conjure up some new ghost of distress, or produce some new panic, the ladies—heaven bless them!—will not give their inspiring presence; and who can talk to naked walls? or who listen to their melancholy echoes?

Mr Wright presented his minority report this morning, on the Rhode Island election. It was found to be a pretty good subject for the political dissecting knife, and therefore laid upon the table.

Mr Pointexter made various objections to it, chiefly on account of its being rather an answer to the report of the majority, rather than a report of the sentiments of the minority, drawn from the documents.

Mr Frelinghuysen objected to it, upon the same ground, saying it was an ingenious argument against the Report, and would require a rejoinder. I well recollect that Mr Wright, at the time Mr Pointexter made his report, said to the Senate, that he did not wish to undertake the labor of making a minority report, unless it was agreeable to the practice and precedents of the Senate; and further, unless the Senate were inclined to receive such a report. As this was a new and somewhat important case, the opposition generally, not only expressed their assent, but their desire, that Mr Wright should report the opinions of the minority. But the truth of the matter is, they did not think "he was so cunning of fence;" if they had, they would not have assented to his making a report.

Mr Potter has been waiting quite patiently during four months, for the final decision of the Senate on this subject. But judging from the manner of their despatching business of this nature, I doubt whether the final decision will be made till near the close of the session. Before it is decided, I think it will call forth considerable debate.

Mr Robbins has been a long time in the Senate; is popular with his own party, and respected by the other. From his age, his talents, his gentlemanly deportment, his social feelings, no one would be induced to oppose him I think, on any ground of personal hostility; and whatever may be the rights, or the result of the case, Mr Robbins will certainly have an impartial, if not more than an impartial trial, (as Mr Leigh would express himself.) Mr Robbins is particularly distinguished in his classical attainments; and, as chairman of the Library Committee, no man in the Senate could fill his place. The present however, is a contest for political power; and all things in our government give place to that.

Mr. Potter, in person, is the finest specimen of an elderly gentleman I ever saw. He is full six feet, with a most imposing figure; quite fleshy, but not unwieldy; a very large head, white thick hair; black brow, and dark eyes; with his features strongly marked. He is said, by those who have seen Charles James Fox, to bear the strongest resemblance to him. I can answer for the countenance, that I thought of Foxes portrait, the moment I saw Mr Potter; all the prints of the English statesmen, are excellent likenesses of the American. Mr Potter is no tyro in politics; he was a member of Congress during the elder Adams' administration; and I am not certain that he was not during Washington's. I must say I should admire to hear him speak; but I fear I shall not be able to wait till his contested election is settled.

A bill for further appropriations for the Cumberland Road was called up for the third reading to day, and lost by a vote of 22 to 20. Parties were all hustled together on this vote, and party lines and party distinctions for once entirely obliterated. Messrs Preston, Wilkins, Clay, King, of Alabama, Kane, Ewing, and several others took part in the debate, and spent most of the day; yet but little interest seemed to be excited. I believe the vote was lost by the absence of some favorable to the bill.

In the House, Mr. Harding of Kentucky made a regular speech against the removal of the deposits, under the amendment offered to the Report of the Committee of Ways and Means. He is considered a man of talents; and is certainly a good orator. His voice however is too loud to be pleasant to hear for a great length of time, especially in the galleries; the echoes and reverberations soon weary the ear. To be heard with pleasure in the house, one must speak slowly and very distinctly; and withal have a very melodious voice. For hearing with any pleasure, this is the very worst place I ever put my ears in. The utility of the Hall is certainly sacrificed to its beauty. I believe it is not possible to alter it for the better. Reversing the Speakers' Chair, and raising the floor about four feet, it was thought would better the matter; but the experiment has left the evil as it found it.

We shall by and by have a debate about the General Post Office, and its management. This I expect will last a fortnight when it takes place, unless something should pop up to lay it on the table. But it will be time enough to touch upon things as they come up; so I will lay by my pen and wait their coming.

DOMESTIC INSTRUMENT.—The habitual and indiscriminate use of purgative drugs can only afford a temporary relief, by unnaturally stimulating the digestive organs, which they exhaust of their secretions, and thereby render them incapable of performing their proper functions. The great utility of Laxatives or Domestic Clysters, the use of which has so long been practised in France and England, is at length so far from this country, as generally to form part of the directions of our most eminent practitioners to their dyspeptic or bilious patients, and one of the greatest obstacles to the general adoption of Domestic Clysters has been the inconvenient construction and unwieldy size of the instruments employed for this purpose. This instrument may be used by an invalid without assistance, and is so portable as to admit of being carried in the coat pocket without inconvenience. The flexible tube, commonly employed for apparatus of this kind, from its want of durability, having proved a source of great inconvenience, particularly to persons residing in the country, a new kind of tubing is manufactured under the protection of a patent, which is essentially different from any other apparatus, and is equally durable and perfect in all climates. THE MORNING POST.

MONDAY, APRIL 7, 1834.

STENOGRAPHIC GLIMPSSES OF CONGRESS.
No. 105.

Washington, April 2, 1834.—In announcing the death of GEN. JAMES BLAIR last night, I was misinformed as to the time when it took place; it was about 7 o'clock. There are various contradictory reports in circulation, relative to the circumstances attending the catastrophe—but all seem to agree with the fact, that he committed the rash act immediately after hearing an affectionate letter read to him, which had just been received from his wife.

Some accounts state, that she requested him to resign his seat and return home to attend the education of his sons—others, that she informed him that his affairs at home were in a prosperous condition—and that she should start for Washington in a day or two. It is unimportant perhaps which may be correct.

He had kept his room a day or two, not having attended at the House since Saturday. He has been in the habit of using opium very freely, which, together with his manner of living, frequently produced a temporary delirium. The immediate cause of the suicide was, doubtless, the strong emotion produced by the letter from his wife. He arose from the bed immediately after it was read—some accounts say before it was finished—and drank something from a tumbler, and then took a pistol from the desk, and as Gov. Murphy, of Alabama, who alone was with him, hearing him cock it, turned his head, and saw the flash of the pistol—and before he hardly had time to rise from his chair, the deceased sunk upon the floor.

The House met this morning at 11 o'clock, and the Hon. George McDuffie, in a very appropriate manner, announced the death of his colleague. I shall not pretend to give his language—but the substance of his remarks was, that but a few weeks since, the House had been called to pay the last tribute of respect to the memory of one of its members, who, in the vigor of health, fell lifeless before their eyes—and now they were again called upon to attend the funeral of another of their body, whose exit was not less sudden and shocking—that while death thus called us out of existence without warning, we yet lived as if unconscious that life had any termination.

He felt that an eulogy upon the dead was at no time appropriate—the name, to a stranger, was but a blank—to his friends it was unnecessary to speak their praise—the tear of affection would gush up to embalm their memory and their virtues.

Mr Preston announced his death to the Senate, not in so happy a manner, but yet with sentiments that did honor to a generous heart.

Gen. Blair was highly respected for the frankness and generosity of his character, and the kindness of his disposition. He was an affectionate husband, an indulgent father, a firm friend, a good neighbor, and a patriotic citizen. No man ever questioned his motives or his integrity—and in the difficult situation in which the late crisis of his State placed him, his conduct won the approbation equally of friends and foes.

Both Houses passed the usual resolutions on such occasions, to attend his funeral, and wear badges, &c. The funeral took place from the Representatives' Hall, at 4 o'clock, this afternoon—the President and Heads of Department, the two Houses, and strangers, attending.

Rev. Mr Hatch made a prayer, and Rev. Mr Stockton made a short and appropriate address. No allusion, in either, was made to the unhappy manner of his death. He was buried with the same ceremonies and respect as Judge Baldwin—but a less number of strangers attended the funeral service. There was less notice of the funeral, and fewer strangers in the city—so that I do not think the manner of his death prevented any one from attending at his funeral.

Immediately upon the Senate being called to order this morning, Judge White moved a re-consideration of the vote on the Cumberland Road yesterday. He voted against the bill. I understood him to say, that though he called for a re-consideration, he might not change his vote, but that he wished to give his reasons, &c. The vote for re-consideration was carried, 25 to 8. I suggested yesterday, that I thought the vote was lost by the absence of members—and am inclined to think now this was the case—so the bill may yet pass—though I think it will undergo some amendments. About $4,400,000 have been already expended on the road—and it is thought $600,000 more will be required before the States, through which it passes, will consent to accept it of the Government, and keep it in repair. So far it has cost $17,000 per mile.

I think it will call up a debate of a few days, if nothing of more interest should chance to thrust it aside. REIS EFFENDI.

The real Democracy awake.—An immense meeting of the mechanics, artisans, and working men friendly to the measures of the administration, and opposed to a National Bank, was held at Tammany Hall, in the city of N. York, on Wednesday evening. The Great Hall was crowded, also the staircase and committee rooms, and a great multitude, unable to gain entrance, took possession of the Park, organized themselves, and adopted proceedings similar to those of the meeting within the walls of Tammany Hall. The Post says—

"There never was a more numerous, a more enthusiastic, or a more decorous public meeting, at any time, or on any occasion, in this city. The whole vast throng seemed actuated by one mind and one heart. The sentiments of the multitude were expressed in shouts so unanimous and accordant, that they seemed like the upthrusting of one mighty voice. That voice, reaching the ears of those who were engaged in corresponding proceedings in the Park, was ever and anon answered by them with hearty cheers, which floated back to those who crowded the great room of Tammany Hall, and seemed like the reverberated echo of their own loud acclamations."

The Virginia Elections.—The elections have commenced in Virginia, and the result of them will put an end to the struggles of the bank men to sustain the power of the monster. The Richmond Whig holds a very desponding tone on the subject.

In New York, the friends of the Administration are busy—the Bankites bluster, the Democrats vote. The sons of St Tammany know what they are about. Nancie Lang is running about in his night-gown and slippers like a crazy man.

The Bankites will try their strength to-morrow in Portland, upon the election of Mayor.—Anti-Bank candidate, Hon JOHN ANDERSON.—Bank candidate, Levi Cutler, Esq.

THIRTEEN DAYS LATER.

The Packet ship Pacific, Captain Waite, from Liverpool, whence she sailed on the morning of the 11th of March, brings Liverpool papers up to that date, and London papers to the 9th, inclusive.—N. Y. Ec. Post.

The Queen of Spain has acceded to the proposition for convoking a Cortez, and it is stated that Martinez de la Rosa is still at his post as Prime Minister. Don Carlos is said to have negotiated a loan for 400,000,000 reals, but the name of the contractor is not mentioned.

The intelligence of an encounter between the troops of Don Miguel and Don Pedro, on the 17th of February, is confirmed. The Miguelites lost 700 in killed and prisoners, and were obliged to retreat. The Pedroites had 500 killed.

In the British House of Commons, on the 6th of March, Mr Hume brought forward a motion to repeal the Corn Laws, and substitute a fixed rate of duty on corn. A long and able debate followed; after which, the motion was rejected by 312 votes to 155.

The arrangements between Belgium and Holland are said to be definitely made. A Berlin article under date of February 21, says that Belgium is to have the entire province of Limbourg, and Holland that of Luxemburg. The regulations of the trade of the Scheldt is the only point remaining to be decided by the diplomatists.

Letters from Madrid are to the 23d. The monks of Salamanca have openly declared against the Queen, and several of them have been arrested. The other monks attempted to release them, but the students of Salamanca, armed, routed the monks, stormed and pillaged their convent.

The official account of the Battle of Almas, published below is somewhat exaggerated, if we may judge by the official despatch received by the Pacific.

Latest from Portugal.—Capt. Hill, of the ship Belvidera, at Baltimore, from St Ubes, the evening of the 25th February, was furnished by the American Consul, who came from Lisbon on the day previous, with the following information:—

Don Miguel still occupies the strong place of Santarem, distant 12 leagues from Lisbon, where he united his forces. From the Province he collected about 9 to 10,000 men, mostly royalist, volunteers and militia. On the 18th he ordered Gen. Lamos to take 5000 men of his best troops, and directed an attack upon the whole of the Constitutionalists' line at Cartago.

Don Miguel had previously announced to his soldiers that a movement had taken place in Lisbon, which caused the greatest part of Pedro's army to march upon that city in all haste, and that a Russian and American fleet were laying before the bar, ready to assist him. Thus deceived, the Miguelites made an attack, which resulted in their entire defeat.

Trade is of course mostly at a stand. An admission of 10,000 mays of hard wheat, 4000 do of soft do, 4000 do Indian corn, to begin March 1st, and to stop the moment that quantity is fulfilled. A great deal has already arrived, and the above quantity is expected to be shortly completed. The admission is only allowed in Lisbon.

LIVERPOOL COTTON MARKET.

Friday Evening, March 7.—The operations of the week, in our Cotton Market have been very extensive, and an advance has been realized of 3d per lb. in American and 4d to 5d in Brazil kinds, particularly in Pernams, which have been most generally in request. The public sale of Surats, this day, went off a little lower than the business transacting by private contract, and the market for all descriptions has closed with rather less spirit than has been shown on any of the preceding days of the week. The sales of the week, including 3000 bales American, 2200 Perams, 750 Maranham, 250 Bahia, and 2000 Surats, taken on speculation, and 5000 Surats, 4000 American, and 50 Brazil, for export, amount to 30,400 bags. Import 41,361.

Latest from France.—The packet ship Utica, Capt. Depeyster, arrived yesterday from Havre, whence she sailed on the 25th of February. The accounts from Paris are only two days later than those previously received by way of London. Among the passengers is our worthy citizen John Jacob Astor Esq.—The papers contain very little of moment.—N. Y. Jour. Com.

The editors are all talking about the Locomotive on the Worcester Rail Road—it will travel eighteen or twenty miles an hour, with nearly as many loads of gravel tied to its tail. "All hail the Locomotive," as the Major would say.

Mr Kemble's Pierre, on Friday night, was stiff and unnatural—his declamation cold enough to give a fellow the fever-and-ague.—Master Burke will be here in a day or two—he is the boy for fun. Forrest is doing well at New Orleans. The New Yorkers say that Miss Barnes is quite clever.

At the Warren, Mr F. S. HILL will make his first appearance this evening, after his successful tour, at the south, as Julio Dormilly, in the "Six Degrees of Crime."

Miss Juliet Enos, of Pittsburg, Pa., has written a successful tragedy, entitled "Santiago, or the Tyrant's Revenge."

The Fire King is cooling off—those who wish to see him had better look quick.

The popularity of Mr Mossie's entertainments increases. All mouths praise him.

The bill to create state stock to the amount of six millions of dollars, has passed the New York Assembly by a vote of 98 to 12.

Mr Webster will not deny that the Bank partisans are in a "cheering" condition.

New Orleans, April 3d.—"We have just received the important intelligence that the Citizens Bank of New Orleans has negotiated a loan of FOURTEEN MILLIONS OF DOLLARS in HOLLAND at 5 PER CENT. for 50 YEARS.—Thus is the game of the United States Bank on the prosperity of the Valley of the Mississippi!"

The resolution requesting our Representatives in Congress, and instructing our Senators, to endeavour to procure the enactment of a law for the transportation of convicts, passed the (N. Y.) Assembly on Thursday.—Yeas 66, Noes 33.

The poor Poles are driven about into every part of the earth—scattered like the winds of heaven—some to Algiers, some to Egypt, some in England, others in Austria, and the United States. The greater part are in France, amounting to more than six thousand, all receiving pensions from that government.

Human life seems but slightly appreciated at New Orleans. A murder which in this city would create quite a ferment, is thus noticed—"We learn that on the night of Thursday last, a man was murdered at, or in the vicinity of the 'Swamp.' Particulars not ascertained."

CONGRESS.

On Wednesday, no business was transacted in either House of Congress, except the decision in the Senate, to re-consider the vote of the preceding day, by which the Bill providing for the repair of the Cumberland Road was rejected. By this decision that bill is restored to the table of the Senate.

New York Electioneering.—The Aristocrats, alias Nationals, alias Independent Republicans, alias Whigs, alias anything else that will answer the purposes of deception, have at length issued their Manifesto from Masonic Hall, denouncing the administration, and solemnly declaring they "will have no King to rule over them." They had better take care how they make such indiscreet discourses, or they will lose the countenance and support of a vast many of their party. The old Tories who have always zealously supported them from a fellow feeling in favor of Royalty, will assuredly abandon their ranks, if they thus desert their ancient principles, and prove recreant to the good old cause of legitimacy.

The address of the alias party, as it ought to be called, is a summary, drawn partly from the manifestoes of the Bank of the United States, partly from the independent Bank newspapers, and partly from the declamations of their subsidiaries in the Senate and elsewhere.—Evening Post.

Money and Business.—It is a source of gratification, that the alarm produced by the suspension of the Bank of Maryland, has considerably subsided, and that the demand for specie on the other Banks, has almost entirely ceased, and much that was taken out is returning to their vaults, being found a troublesome and dangerous article to individuals to hold in their domicils, particularly in the country.

The Banks discounted more freely the latter part of the last week than for some time past, particularly the U. S. Branch, and with the present good feeling and mutual forbearance in their exchanges with each other, they will soon be able to relieve the pressure in a considerable degree.

Several merchants have informed us that the spring business is opening pretty fairly, and much country money is beginning to appear.—Balt. Rep.

At L'Assomption a most horrible murder has been committed under the following circumstances: Two brothers, it appears, had paid their addresses to the same female. The brother who had been rejected vowed that their happiness should not be of long duration—and it seems too truly he kept his promise; for on Sunday he entered the chamber of his brother, and murdered his sleeping wife at his side by continued blows, which he inflicted with an axe. His brother was also seriously wounded in the arm in attempting to defend his wife.

Failures! Failures!—We heard the rumor of an event having occurred yesterday evening on Dauphin street, which caused considerable excitement. It is said the integrity of a dandy's coat failed at the elbow, in attempting to give the "grand flourish" to his beaver, as he passed some ladies on the walk. The extent of the failure not ascertained.—We have had our news man out to ascertain the correctness of the report, and whether the city is likely to be thrown into a "panic" in consequence of the event.—Mobile Reg.

THE BOSTON RESOLUTIONS.

[From our Correspondent.]

Washington, April 3, 1834.—Col. Benton presented the Boston Resolutions, of the 13th March, to the Senate to-day, and accompanied them with an eloquent and appropriate speech. I have never witnessed him so happy in his manner, as to-day—he was cool, calm, collected and emphatic.

He adduced several new and cogent arguments against the Bank—and, exhibiting to view the condition of the country in 1811, (when the old Bank expired) compared and contrasted it in a very striking manner with the present crisis.

In 1811, there was the same Hag of Endor abroad, calling up ghosts of distress to produce a panic, that we witness now—and panics may produce distress as well as real perils. The deposits at that time were not removed from the Bank, because Government was owing the Bank beyond their amount. And this Mr Gallatin gives as a reason for not removing them.

There was the same supplications, and groanings, and prophecies of evil and disaster then as now; and they came from the same patriotic source, the opposition to the administration. "God forbid that we should question their motives;" they were doubtless as high-minded and generous as the owl who wished to have the sun extinguished;—not certainly to encourage the whale fishery and raise the price of blubber; but that he might be enabled to make war upon the mice. The owl is rather a worse foe, than the mice; and the National Bank a more dangerous enemy to our liberties, than the State Banks, which it wishes to hunt down, and destroy. But for the assistance and relief of the State Banks, the National Bank would long since have ceased to exist. With the amiable disposition of the slut in "distress," that borrowed her neighbors kennel to whelp in, she has now, since her puppies are grown, armed the whole litter against her benefactors. We shall soon see how the contest will be decided; and there is little doubt about the issue.

Col Benton represented the establishment of the Bank as the first great breach in the Constitution, through which the American System has entered the citadel of our liberties; and if the charter is renewed, this system, by construction, will then usurp the powers of the constitution. The very deposits about which all the contest is raised, he contended were the products of the revenue, which, raised under this very American System, brought about the alarming collision between the government and South Carolina, and threatened the dissolution of the Union. There is but too much truth in this; and I should like to hear how the "father" of the "system" would answer this point.

He said this was not simply a question about the re-charter of the Bank—it was the great question that was raised between the two great political parties of the country immediately after the establishment of the Constitution, as to its construction. The Federal party contended for constructive powers—the Republican party, with Mr Jefferson at their head, insisted upon the delegated powers.—The one went for a strong government—the other for a free one.

The Secretary of the Treasury answered the resolutions of Mr Clay, calling for information relative to the amount of stock owned by Mr Taney in the Deposit Bank of Baltimore. The documents were ordered to be printed. Mr Clay got more than he called for, yet less than he hoped for, but much more than he desired. When he calls out at political brag, he always finds he has the worst hand.

Mr Sprague presented a "distress" from Bath, Maine, and graced it with a speech, and an apology for making it. These memorials have become so rare now, it is quite distressing; the party, I fancy, are studying economy on this subject; and mean to husband their "distress," so that they shall last during the session.

By the way, I ought to have noticed the allusion of Col. Benton, to Webster's Bill, which upon his own motion, amidst the very crisis of distress, was laid upon the table for many weeks. Judge Bibb very kindly answered for the absent senator; and apologized for this course, by saying, that the Hon. mover was well assured that a majority was against him.—No great proof of his tact or wisdom.

Mr McDuffie commenced a speech to-day on the Deposit Question, and has the floor to-morrow. He took occasion in commencing, to remark upon the anonymous letters sent to the President, threatening him with assassination. He reprobated the threats in the most unsparing terms; yet professed to think them idle. He then commenced an argument on Executive power, and replied particularly to several speeches made in favor of the President's exercising the power of removal. He is decidedly the most emphatic orator in the House, and commands the most attention—he is a man of that temperament that will always be in the minority, right or wrong. REIS EFFENDI.
